

Slicing the confirmatory contrast every way it can be sliced

Left: no excess of small p ; the pile-up at 1 is the discreteness of a binary shift outcome in small cells, not evidence. Right: condition labels are permuted among each participant's own five conversations and the whole grid is recomputed; the null is the largest $|t|$ found anywhere in that shuffled grid.